

TORNADO DEALS DEATH

Three Members of the Malloy Family at Salix, Ia., Killed.

SOUGHT REFUGE IN THE CELLAR.

Emerging Too Soon They are Hurt to a Violent Death—Other Towns and Farms in Iowa and Nebraska Damaged—Houses Blown Down and Scattered.

SIoux CITY, June 12.—A tornado struck 16 miles south of here near the town of Salix, Ia., about 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The storm did not cover a large territory, but caused death and terrible havoc wherever the funnel shaped cloud struck the earth. The first house struck was that of John Malloy. The family, father, mother and eight children, had gone into the cellar when the sky grew dark, but after remaining there a few moments, came to the conclusion that it was only a thunder storm and started upstairs again just as the cloud struck the house, completely demolishing it. Malloy and his wife Kate were instantly killed. Harry Malloy, 16 years of age, was terribly injured and died in a few hours. Tom Malloy, aged 19, was badly mangled and will probably die. The house of Mrs. Cora Hassel, a widow, was next in the storm's path and was blown into hundreds of pieces. The family had entered the cellar and escaped. The homes of Phil Berger, John Bernard and Patrick O'Neil were all reduced to kindling wood. The occupants, it is reported, all escaped serious injury. Pat Malloy, who was brought to Sioux City on a special train, tells a graphic story of the storm. He says houses, barns, live stock and human beings were sucked up by the swirling cloud, the air appearing to be filled with wrecked buildings and debris to the height of a half mile.

At Homer, Neb., across the river, reports of considerable damage by wind have been received, but no loss of life has been reported. At Homer an evangelist's tent was blown down while a meeting was in progress. All escaped injury except one unknown woman, who, it is said, will die. Hail stones as big as eggs fell during the storm.

At Sergeant Bluff some loss was sustained and considerable damage was done by the straight wind after the tornado.

At the town of Leeds, just north of Sioux City, a cloudburst left two feet of water in the main streets. No loss of life is reported, but there was considerable damage to property.

This is the sixth tornado in this district this season.

I., June 12.—A revised list of the casualties resulting from the explosion of the flashlight apparatus at the launching of the cup defender Columbia Saturday night shows that one boy was killed, one boy possibly fatally injured and six others severely injured. From an examination it was found that a large tin reflector used by the photographers was blown to atoms by the explosion. Pieces of tin have been taken from many of the wounds of the injured.

The Columbia was turned around this morning with her stern toward the shop and all her flags flying. A large crowd gathered about the wharf during the day to get a glimpse of the new craft.

The district for six or seven miles north of the packing houses is a sea of water. The Burton car works and other buildings in the vicinity are wholly surrounded. A conference has been held between a committee from the union and James B. Grant, chairman of the advisory board of the company. The committee announced that the employees would demand an 8-hour day and the same wages for eight hours as they have been receiving for 10 or 12 hours. Mr. Grant replied that the company would pay the scale of wages of 1898, an increase of 10 per cent, and that the men would be paid by the hour, and would have the option of working more than eight hours. The committee agreed to submit the company's proposition to the union.

Bradstreet's Review of Trade.

NEW YORK, June 10.—Bradstreet's says: Exceptional firmness in prices at the highest level as regards general staple values yet reached, a small rate of business mortality, continued industrial activity, perhaps most manifest in all branches of trade in which iron, steel and other metals enter and large bank clearings, assisted to some extent by the improved tone of stocks, but likewise the large payments on previous transactions, are features necessarily new, but not reflected in trade advices. Large shipments of breadstuffs, a result of recent buying, induced by crop damage reports at home and abroad, have, it is true, not been sufficient to offset liquidation on the late reactions, but this is partially explained by advices from the spring wheat crop, confirmed by liberal receipts at primary points.

TO BUILD THE BRIDGE.

Construction Company Formed Yesterday.

WILL SPAN MISSOURI AT YANKTON

The New Bridge to be Used by the Yankton, Norfolk and Southern—Messrs. Graham and Meckling Finish Tour of Inspection.

From Tuesday's Daily.
A telegram to the Sioux City Journal this morning from Yankton, dated June 12, says:

The Yankton Union Bridge company was organized here today with a capital stock of $600,000. The incorporators are: M. P. Ohlman, J. R. Hanson, W. S. Bowen, J. S. Meckling and W. W. Graham.

It is proposed to construct a railroad and wagon bridge across the Missouri at this point, under the terms of the charter passed by congress last March. The bridge is to be used eventually by the Yankton, Norfolk and Southern. Under the charter it must be commenced within one year from March 1 last, and completed in two years. Officers for the company will be selected as soon as certificate of organization is secured.

Pleased With the Route.

The Yankton Press of Saturday evening makes the following railroad report: W. W. Graham, J. S. Meckling and Harry Eller, accompanied by E. L. Sargent of Pierce, Nebraska, reached Yankton last evening from Norfolk, Nebraska, having come overland from Pierce. They followed the right of way of the Yankton, Norfolk and Southern railway from Pierce to the end of the grade, and then drove along the grade to Yankton. Mr. Graham has the articles of incorporation of the railway company, in Nebraska, in his possession. He was most cordially received by the citizens of Norfolk, who entered enthusiastically and heartily into the plans for building the road.

"I found the grade in very much better condition than I expected," said Mr. Graham. "It is practically intact, and can be put in condition for laying track with very little expense. It was very gratifying to make that discovery, and I am more firmly convinced than ever that we will be able to complete the road to Norfolk before snow flies."

Mr. Meckling was pleased beyond expression with the country through which it is proposed to build the road and expresses the same confidence as Mr. Graham on the success of the effort to complete the enterprise.

Messrs. Graham and Meckling will remain in Yankton until Tuesday, when they leave for New York to arrange financial matters connected with the road. They will remain there until they accomplish their purpose.

GOMEZ' FAREWELL MANIFESTO.

Counsels Patience and Submission as the Shortest Route to Freedom.

HAVANA, June 7.—General Maximo Gomez, the former commander-in-chief of the Cuban army, issued his farewell manifesto yesterday. In substance it says: "The mission I have been entrusted with is nearly concluded. I have attempted to find a solution of questions concerning the army which I commanded during the bloodiest war known in America. I am now leaving regretfully to attend to private business. A parting word to the people for whom I have sacrificed 30 years of my life and to my friends in the army just disbanded, which action should have been taken instantly after the removal of the bloody weight of Spain's merciless regime. We wanted and depended upon foreign intervention to terminate the war. This occurred at the most terrible moment of our contest and resulted in Spain's defeat. But none of us thought this extraordinary event would be followed by military occupation of the country by our allies, who rate us as a people incapable of acting for ourselves and who have reduced us to obedience, to submission and to the tutelage imposed by force of circumstances.

This cannot be our ultimate end after the years of struggle, and we should aid by every specific method in finishing the work of organizing, which the Americans accepted in the protocol, and which is as disagreeable to them as for ourselves. This aid will prove useless without concord among all the islanders. Therefore, it is necessary to forget past disagreements to completely unite all elements and to organize a political party which is needed in any country.

We must make useless by our behavior the presence of a strange power in the island and must assist the Americans to complete the honorable mission they have been compelled to assume by force of circumstances. I, as one of the first Cubans, although one of our last old soldiers, and not far from the grave, without passions or ambitions, call on you with the sincerity of a father and urge a cessation of the superfluous discussions and the creation of parties of all kinds which disturb the country and tend to cause anarchy. My mission having ended, I will absent myself temporarily to embrace my family, but I will return shortly to Cuba, which I love as much as my own land.

STILL PURSUE THE BANDITS.

Officials on the Trail of Three More Train Robbers.

CHEYENNE, June 10.—A report received yesterday morning says a posse of Lander officers is out after three men suspected of being the three Union Pacific train dynamiters. The stories told by the trainmen indicate that six men were connected with the holdup and it is possible that the party separated, three making for the Shoshone Indian reservation by way of Lander and the others being the three men now being hunted north of Casper.

A Casper man who came in yesterday states that it is generally believed the fugitives will continue north along Powder river, where there are a number of old-time cattle rustlers who will give the bandits all the aid, shelter and horses they may want. The Hole-in-the-Wall country is now occupied by three or four big sheep outfits owned by well known flock masters, who will not give any assistance to the bandits.

The difficulties of the chase are shown from the story of one of the posse who was with Sheriff Hazen when he was killed. After the fight it was found the posse had passed with 30 feet of the bandits, who were crouching in the sage brush. Hazen was ambushed and killed by the robbers at a distance of 75 feet.

Eighty-nine counties and nearly 700 producers were engaged in developing the mineral resources of the state. The value of the total mineral production in 1898 was $7,426,723, distributed as follows: Coal, $4,759,967; clay, $2,059,385; stone $563,588; lead and zinc, $43,784.

OVALATION FOR LOUBET.

President of French Republic Attends the Grand Prix.

FEW DISCORDANT CRIES HEARD.

Drives Through a Double Hedge of Steel Guarded by Fifteen Thousand Soldiers and Police—Groups of Socialists Also Protect the Chief Executive.

PARIS, June 12.—President Loubet has had his revenge for last Sunday's outrage at Auteuil. When he drove to Longchamps yesterday to attend the grand prix he was the hero of a grand demonstration expressing itself in one form or another along the whole route from the Elysee palace to the race course. He remained only a quarter of an hour, just long enough to witness the race, and having congratulated the owner of the winner, returned to the Elysee, where he arrived at 4 o'clock without special incident.

The revisionist and socialist organs summoned their readers to assemble along the thoroughfares to be traversed by the president and his party and from month thousands of people set out from Montmartre, Belleville and other working class districts in small bands, wearing a small artificial red flower in the buttonhole and marched across Paris, taking up positions along the route.

They gave M. Loubet a tremendous ovation, confining their cries almost entirely to "Vive Loubet" and "Vive la Republique." The president did not hear a discordant cry, although there were one or two scuffles before and after he passed between the police and an occasional hot-headed Dreyfusard, who tried to shout "Abas Loubet," and was immediately pounced upon by a swarm of policemen. Although the visit passed off quietly, the government was prepared for every eventuality, the whole district between the Elysee and Longchamps literally teeming with troops and police. A policeman was stationed every dozen yards along the whole route and there were squadrons of dragoons, armed with lances, and mounted republican guards at all important points.

Longchamps resembled a military camp. Battalions of infantry, squadrons of dragoons and republican guards were distributed all around the course. It is estimated that there were 15,000 soldiers and police under arms. M. Loubet practically drove through a double hedge of steel.

Journalists Roughly Handled.

Later in the evening disorderly scenes occurred outside the office of the Intranse, M. Rochefort's paper. Several journalists were roughly handled and eventually arrested.

At a late hour last evening there was considerable effervescence along the boulevards, where the traffic was much impeded. A few police charges were necessary in the vicinity of the office of the Libre Parole. Several persons were injured.

The only grave incident of the day occurred after the president had returned to the Elysee, at one of the garden restaurants, the Pavilion d'Armenouville. About a quarter past five, when the establishment was full of customers, somebody made an objectionable remark concerning the president. The people took sides and a regular fight ensued. Bottles, glasses, decanters, tables and chairs were hurled about.

The throng quickly swelled to several thousands. The windows of the cafe were smashed and the struggle was continued within. Finally the mounted police arrived, cleared the neighborhood and closed the cafe. Several persons were injured, including a number of policemen.

Socialists Uphold the President.

Several of the chamber of deputies who attended the races are unanimous in praising the wise and calm attitude of the populace there. The socialist leaders were the first to exhort their friends to display moderation. M. Jaures more than once intervened to prevent the enthusiasm of his followers developing into disorder. "We forget our differences here," he said, "to assemble around the president of the republic."

One of the features of the day was an unusually large gathering of deputies and municipal functionaries at Longchamps, less to witness the races than to attest their adherence to the existing regime. All the ministers were loudly cheered when going and returning. Of the 40 persons arrested only a small number have been retained in custody. M. Loubet expressed a wish that all who had been arrested merely because of seditious cries should, so far as possible, be liberated. Two policemen were injured by demonstrators who were trying to rescue friends from arrest. One, a detective, was very roughly used.

Wilke was called from his bed at 10 o'clock at night by Harry Huffman, a friend, and when he went down he was charged with a crime. He denied it and was asked if he would prefer to be ducked or have the story told his father. He took the ducking in the tank and went to bed dripping wet. The next morning he was found hanging at the end of a rope in the barn.
